THE SHANGHAI RACES.

As the principal race comes off this day, we reserve our account of the Spring Meeting for next Saturday's issue.

Now that the invincible arms of England are uplifted in earnest against the progress of the Taiping rebellion, British subjects in China are entitled to every consideration and assistance from the constituted authorities in the furtherance of their peaceful occupations. It is true that in taking this bold step our policy has been that of self-preservation, and not a blind adherence to Imperial interests "as some dull fools suppose," nevertheless we are in a position to claim, from the services thereby rendered, all and every privilege to its fullest extent secured by our treaty rights with the Government. This being the case, how is it that the purchasers of the British Concession at Hankow cannot obtain possession of their land, in consequence of the studied delay and attempts at extortion on the part of mandarins, whose duty it is to facilitate the establishment of the British Settlement at that port? How is it that these treaty rights are ignored by a set of grasping officials, who laugh at the representations of H. B. M. Consul and the body of merchants there, and endenvour to "squeeze" British subjects as they would their own abject countrymen?

The grounds of complaint are these:—On the opening of the port about this time last year, it was understood by the British merchants intending to locate there, that the lots on the concession should be parcelled out with the least possible delay, and they were prepared to take them up in June or July at a fair valuation of the land at that date. In the following September and October when applicants were extremely eager to get upon the land, so as to have buildings erected before the commencement of the hot season or the pressure of trade began this year, they would willingly have given a price much over the value of the land to have secured so desirable an object, but not the slightest progress was made, in consequence of obstacles thrown in the way by the mandarins—who, forcing the landowners to give up their claims at a nominal value, were bent upon securing as high a price as possible from the foreigner, by harrassing delays in settling the terms with the British Consul. Finding that nothing could be done then, most of the settlers had to go elsewhere, and rent or purchase houses and land to enable them to commence business.

Matters continued in this unsatisfactory state until November when the merchants requested the Consul to call a meeting of all the applicants and fix a fair price for the value of the lots. This was acceded to; and after placing himself in communication with the Chinese officials, he determined that the price of any lot should not exceed 2,075 taels, with an extra sum for "Bunding." Although this was a much higher value than was originally contemplated, the applicants not only freely agreed to it, but to ensure a liberal and speedy settlement, 2,000 taels was sanctioned as the maximum price which should be given.

Finding so eager a demand for land, these cunning mandarins threw fresh obstacles in the way of settling the question, hinting that a further advance in the price would be required before possession of the lots could be obtained. Throughout the winter not the slightest progress was made, and as the spring season was advancing these rapacious curs continued to "ask for more." At the beginning of the present month, another meeting of merchants was held to remonstrate upon the injustice of the case, when it was intimated that the difficulties in the way of coming to anything like a fair settlement for the ground still continued—that, in fact, they had greatly increased. Instead of 2,500 taels per lot, as was understood at the meeting in November, would be the outside price, applicants were expected to pay at least 4,000 taels. This exorbitant and unjust demand was rejected by the meeting, when it was determined that 1,000 taels a lot should be paid into the Consul's hands to enable him to settle with the mandarins and proprietors of houses until such time as the case should be represented in higher quarters. If the mandarins are left to themselves—and the Consul of himself is helpless to prevent them—they will still further delay the settlement of matters so as to extract the utmost farthing in their power which the necessities of foreigners will allow. These rapacious officials see that already so much ground has been bought and houses already built or in the course of erection, they well know that sooner or later the concession ground must be occupied by foreigners at any terms they may choose to dictate.

Under these circumstances it was thought by two or three gentlemen at the meeting—especially on learning that H. M. Plenipotentiary at Peking had already been communicated with on the subject—that it would be better to defer doing anything further, until an answer was received from Mr. Bruce. This was over-ruled by the majority, who agreed that the call of Mr. Gingell, H. M. Consul, be accedded to, and that he should be left free to act in the matter, as he deemed most expedient for the interests of all concerned. The correspondence on the head will be found hereafter.

Now this attempt at extortion on the part the mandarins at Hankow is decidedly in contravention of the Treaty of Tientsin, and demands at once the special intervention of H. M. Minister, to make such representations to Prince Kung as that the rapacity of the officials at Hankow may be checked, and they be compelled to accept reasonable terms. In Article XII of the Treaty it stipulates that "British subjects, whether at the ports or at other places, desiring to lease or open houses, warehouses, &c., also make their agreement for the land or buildings they require at the rate prevailing among the people equitably, and without exaction on either side."

This is plain language and cannot be distorted. The insertion of this Article displays the astuteness of Lord Elgin and his colleagues in drawing up the terms of the treaty, and exactly meets the case in point. Surely the Hon. Mr. Bruce will not stultify the diplomacy of his brother, by overlooking this matter and allowing it to take its course without interference on his part. This is just one of those cases which the appointment of a Minister-plenipotentinry at court was intended to meet; and if from any disinclination on the part of that functionary he declines to interpose his authority the sooner we are without an embassador at Peking the better. Shall it be said of us that at Shanghai we are throwing away our blood and treasure in the cause of the Imperial Government, while at Hankow we are thus submitting to the exactions of their petty officials, who should be punished for their audacity. If we tolerate such doings, we will become the laughing-stock of the world. We shall refrain at present from further comment on the matter, until we learn the result of Mr. Consul Gingell's reference of the affair to the Hon. Mr. Bruce.

BRITISH CONCESSION AT HANKOW.

Correspondence.

Hankow, 2nd April, 1862.

Sir,—We, the undersigned British merchants and applicants for land within the British Concession at Hankow, beg to represent to you the great inconvenience we are suffering from the delay in bringing to a close the negotiations for the purchase of the ground which is to form the future settlement.

Most of us have now been ten months at this place, and some of us over that period; and finding when we came here, that immediate possession of the lots we had applied for could not be obtained, we have been under the necessity of making such temporary arrangements as could be effected for carrying on our respective business.

These arrangements for the most part have been made under much difficulty, and are attended with very considerable inconvenience, inasmuch as independently of the heavy rents we have to pay, the houses, in many instances, situated in localities ill adapted for business, are uninsurable against fire, and as dwellings are comfortless in the extreme, and instead of being united in one spot we are widely separated.

The hope that these inconveniences would be of short duration has hitherto deterred us from making any formal representation to you on the subject. This hope was strengthened by the prospect afforded us of an early settlement of the Concession ground at the meeting held at the Consulate on 28th November last, and, more recently, by your circular of 23rd January last, calling upon us to be prepared to take up our respective lots, which we, accordingly have been ever since.

It is now with extreme regret we learn at the very late period, and near the commencement of another season, that matters are as distant from a settlement as ever; and that from unnecessary business and opposition on the part of the Chinese Authorities principally negotiations are still likely to be protracted to an indefinite period, to the great hurt and detriment of our interests.

The effect of all this is to render parties desirous of making other and permanent arrangements, which, although attended with many disadvantages, will relieve them from much of the inconvenience they now experience; and to lessen the interest which all should feel in the welfare and prosperity of the Concession.

Already much land has been purchased outside of the concession and in other localities, by parties who have been disappointed at the delay dragging negotiations to a termination; and a demand for land has been created, which e would not have existed. Prices are forced unnaturally, and your own difficulties in setting with the Mandarins and proprietors are greatly increased, while our interests at the same time are seriously prejudiced. Further delay must tend to aggravate these evils.

Under the circumstances above mentioned we ge you will submit our grievance to the Hon. W. A. Bruce, C.B., British Minister and Chief Superintendent of Trade in China, together with our own strong representations on the subject, and our earnest appeal, that he will interfere for relief against the evasions and delays which, we believe, are being deliberately practised by the Mandarins in order to extort higher prices than are justly due, and that he will adopt such measures as will compel an early settlement on fair and equitable terms.

We are, Sir,
Your most obedient Servants,
Signed by all the Applicants with One Exception.

W. Raymond Gingell, Esq.,
H. B. M. Consul.

British Consulate,
Hankow, 13th April, 1862.

Gentlemen.—I have forwarded to H.B.M. Minister at Pekin, a copy of your letter to me of 2nd inst., representing the great inconvenience you are suffering from the delay in bringing to a close the negotiations for the purchase of the ground which is to form the future Settlement.

For some time past I have been fully alive to the grievance, of which, I regret to say, you have just a reason for complaining; and finding that experienced at the hands of the Mandarins, with whom I had to negotiate, nothing but delays, difficulties, and duplicity, and my frequent appeals to the Viceroy failed to produce any apparent good result, I at length resolved without further loss of time, to bring the subject to the notice of the Hon. Mr. Bruce and earnestly claim his intervention with the Prince of Kung.

Your letter, in addition to my previous strong representation, will I trust be a means of soon bringing about a settlement of the concession, which might ere this have been placed in the hands of the several Applicants for lots therein and the Chinese Officials lent their just and ready assistance.

I am, &c.,
W. Raymond Gingell.

To R. B. Davies, Esq.,

THE HAVOC AT KIUKIANG.

To the Editor of the North-China Herald.

Sir.—In ordinary fairness allow me to make a few remarks on the letter signed "Observer," which appeared in your issue of March 29. Your correspondent states that the Havoc was ordered to pull down all the houses at Kiukiang, and, so well had the task been performed, that not one brick remained on the other.

Now I beg flatly to contradict this statement. I was present at Kiukiang during the time the Concession was settled, and only five houses were pulled down by the Havoc's crew; two of these houses being tenanted by Englishmen, and the other three having been vacated by the Chinese for some days previously.

As for the ill-feeling which your correspondent dreads, I can only remark that the people have been too well paid for their miserable habitations to have any grudge against foreigners. If the Mandarins keep quiet nothing is to be feared from the people—who, leaving themselves in the quietest manner, have removed upwards of 200 houses from our Concession, and so caused the dreadful scene which has preyed so much on the mind of "Observer."

I am,
Your obedient Servant,

THE RELIGION OF THE TAIPINGS.

To the Editor of the North-China Herald.

Sir,—As you have taken up the matter of religion amongst the Taipings once or twice of late, with a view of exposing their dogmas and showing the absurdity of people having faith in them as being true Christian worshippers, it may not be amiss to hand you at times a few translations of extracts of notes from the Tai-ping edition of the Bible, where allusion is more especially made to the Tien-wang. Small portions only shall be sent at a time, just by way of filling up a small corner in your paper, as being an uninteresting subject so many it would tend to tire them too much were too great a quantity given at once. We send them merely to show that the Tien-wang's blasphemy extends to a degree which could hardly have been imagined.

It may have been the case formerly, and we believe it was at one time that when first the Tien-wang and his followers commenced their career their religion had some semblance of Christianity in it; but unfortunately since Hung-sou-tsenen has been in possession of Nanking and his power has been on the increase, a complete change has taken place. He has styled himself a heavenly king, and has even gone so far as to call himself the Brother of Christ, and to say that he has been up to heaven; and on the other hand from the increase of power the small amount of worship before time devoted to God is now devoted to the Tien-wang, who has now become the divinity of the heavenly capital. With regard to the ascension up into heaven, we quote a short extract from one of the rebel books, where the Tien-wang bearing testimony for himself says—"The time that We ascended into heaven, various musical instruments attended Us; the thunder also came to our presence and was, as it were, of the fashion of a male fowl (hsiung-chi). Heavenly officers and troops supported Us into a carriage and through the northern region by this great road carried Us up to heaven. On each side of the heavenly portal were beautiful women without number to receive Us. It was about the space of two days We remained there, and then came down."

To continue with our subject, however.

In the note to the 9th chapter of Genesis, more especially comprehending that portion of it from verse 8 to 17 we read—"The Father established an everlasting convenant to manifest his rainbow [in the clouds]. The rainbow is curved in the form of a bow. The dot in the curve is the Great Sun. We (chên)* are the Sun, hence Our name is Hung. The Father first established this token preparatory to his sending hung-jit (the Great Sun) to become Lord."

In the note to the 14th chapter of Genesis we find—"We are this Melchisedec. When We came down from heaven beforetime We manifested this miracle to serve as a proof that We should descend upon the earth at the present time and become king. For when heaven does anything it must be by prophecy. The Father beforetime descended from heaven to bring Israel out of Egypt, to be as a sign that he would come down at the present time and found a heavenly capital. The Elder Brother was born in Judah, and redeemed the world, that it might be a sign that he would descend upon the earth at the present time to become Lord and Saviour of it. Beforetime We descended upon the earth and rewarded the merit of Abraham with blessings and happiness to serve as a sign that We should descend upon the earth at the present time, become Lord of it, and save the good people. The Father's Sacred Will hence says that the proofs of all that are many. Respect this!"

Again, in the note to the 7th chapter of Hebrews we read—"This Melchisedec is myself or, better still, We are this Melchisedec. Beforetime in heaven above the Mother (wife of the Heavenly Father) brought forth the Elder Brother and Us. We then knew that the Father would hereafter send the Elder Brother down in the seed of Abraham, hence We commended his troops for their labour and rewarded Abraham with blessings, for Abraham was a good man. The Father's Sacred Will says—Ho-wang is the chief to save the good people, the proof of which is shown by Our coming down upon the earth at the present time to become the Chief. Respect this!"

* This character is generally translated by "We."

We remain,
Yours, &c.,
VERITAS.

To the Editor of the North-China Herald.

Sir.—A recent trip up and down the Yang-tsze-kiang and taking with the charts of the same spread out before me, has induced me to endeavour to perpetuate the memory of a few events which have transpired upon the great river and are worthy of notice. The different officers and vessels belonging to the expedition engaged in its survey have been immortalized in reaches, channels, and islands. Let us take a look at the outsiders.

In May, 1853, H.I. Majesty the Emperor of China ordered an expedition to be fitted out in Shanghai for the purpose of subjugating the rebels at Chin-kiang-foo. It consisted of the schooner Duran, of 8 guns, Capt. P. Robinson; barque Agnes, Capt. W. or Laney Ebbsworthy; ship Sir Herbert Compton, Capt. James Brown, with a fleet of small craft comprising the brigs Clown, Boxer, and several lorchas from Macao; also the brig Antelope of 14 guns under my command. The latter vessel was drawing 14 feet of water, and without a pilot passed through what is now called the Centaur Channel (but not on the charts) without grounding. I anchored at the entrance of the Laou-hu Creek and was engaged for two days in surveying this channel, which differs but little from the present survey, and which chart is now in my possession. I was assisted materially by Capt. E. W. Robinson in his cutter, and the whole fleet was carried through and over the Langshan Crossing in safety. I claim therefore for this passage the name of "Antelope Channel." The Antelope took the ground at night on a spit, which has come to the notice of the present navigators, extending from the Red Sand Cliffs opposite the lower end of—— Island and about 3 miles below the village of Tau-tso. The Admiral in charge of the fleet sent a junk to lighten the ship, having 20 tons of stone ballast put into her, but a strong breeze coming on and a considerable sea getting up, she filled and sunk alongside. To my knowledge she was never raised. This spit is very dangerous, several vessels having grounded upon it, and I claim for it the name of "Antelope Spit."

In June, 1854, the U. S. Steam Frigate Susquehannah, Capt. F. Buchanan, and the chartered American str. Confucius, Capt. Thos. W. Dearborn—the former conveying H.E. Robt. M. McLane, U.S. Minister, ascended the Yang-tsze as far as Woohoo and returned in safety.

On a beautiful Sabbath morning all hands were summoned to bury the dead. The ship was anchored near the shore between what is now called Point Morton and the East Pillar. The body of the chief boatswain's mate, Daniel McKinby was interred on the summit of the lower bluff—10 square feet of ground were purchased from the villagers for $10 for his resting place; the American flag was planted on a staff over his grave; the hill was named "McKinby's Bluff," and he was left alone in his glory. The Confucius having on board the late much-lamented Rev. Dr. E. C. Bridgman and the Rev. M. S. Culbertson went in advance to find the right channel, two passages being discovered. She cruised round the island to the westward abreast of Point Morton, and returned with the desired information. We gave it the name of "Dearborn Island;" and as it now bears no name on the chart, justice to that successful navigator of the Yang-tsze gives him a place on the chart of that great river. The island opposite Point Martin and the channel to the westward of it should be called "Confucius Channel."

Mr. John Marsell, while in command of the Steamers Pluto and Confucius, in the service of H.E. the Taoutai of Shanghai, in the years 1858-59-60, plying between the ports of Shanghai and Chinkiang, took the route below Sin-now-min known commonly as the Seven Fathom Channel. From being captain of the first foreign-built craft that passed through it and at the present day no soundings being given on the chart of the latest date, I claim for him the name of "Marsell's Pass."

In the month of June, 1861, the British barque Mona, in tow of steam-tug Taiyung, took the passage to the south-west of Collinson Island carrying plenty of water, and for that passage I claim the name of the "Mona Channel."

On the 2nd day of February, 1862, when the river was at its extreme lowest depth, the steam-ship Governor General took the passage to the northward of Barker Island and discovered very deep water. Her prudent Commander, Capt. Robert McQueen, can rightfully claim for this passage the name of the "Governor-General Channel."

The schooner May Queen and her commander, Buckminster, have already been noticed in the charts of the Yangtsze.

On the first of March, 1862, when the river was exceedingly low, the rock off Kweichow and Golden Island was dry about a foot, it was found to be in mid-channel, and remained uncovered at low water spring tides for three or four days.

Its bearings are—as given by Mr. West, master of the Hermes—

Summit of Silver Island,	E. ¼ S.
Golden Island Pagoda,	SE. by E ¼ E.
Yangchow Pagoda,	N.N.E. ¼ E.

From this position at the entrance of Grand Canal the Rock bears E. by S ¼ S. 1.6/10 miles.

I would feel obliged by your giving these few remarks a place in your columns in order that justice and honor may be rendered to those to whom it is due.

I am, Sir,
Respectfully yours,
W. E. Ayers.
Upper Yang-tsze River Service.

NOTES ON DUST-STORMS OCCURRING AT TIENTSIN.

Communicated by Dr. Lampry,
Surgeon, 67th Regiment.

A remarkable dust-storm occurred on the 26th of March, 1862, which has not been equalled for many years. During the greatest portion of the day, the wind was blowing from the south in rather strong gusts, almost approaching to a gale. At 3h. 15m. P.M. the wind suddenly shifted to N.N.W. in a strange manner, when all at once the air was filled with dust, and the sun and light became obscured as if a total eclipse had had suddenly occurred. The wind blowing a hurricane, the darkness had something appalling in it, it was so sudden and so unusual. It was noticed that the darkness would lighten somewhat, at intervals of a quarter of an hour or twenty minutes, as if about to abate, when it would suddenly increase again, along with a slight change of the wind to the N.N.E. The wind endeavouring to become more northerly, would suddenly turn again to this point, and bring along with it an increase of the dust. This state continued till about midnight, when there was a slight calm till 8 o'clock the following morning.

On the occurrence of this dust-storm, there was a rapid fall of the thermometer, and during the night a hard frost set in. At the place where I made these observations—about 30 miles N.W. of Tientsin—I noticed an old man of 70 years of age in a very excited state crying out "What day is this," and "low-le," the words corresponding to "Oh, Providence." He would give me little or no information on the subject; but from others I learned that such heavy storms had occurred before, and on my return to Tientsin I ascertained that one happened 36 years ago which lasted a fortnight, when the light during that time was not lighter than the dusk of evening. I also learned that the Chinese designated this storm as a red one—their classification being as follows: white, yellow, red, and black; depending on the amount of light, or more properly speaking the amount of dust, in the atmosphere at the time. At one stage of the storm they thought we were about to have a black storm, and during the third paroxism the darkness almost allowed of this appellation. The amount of dust that covered one's person was astonishing, and the clothes, &c., inside our coat were thickly covered with dust. On drawing a feather through one's fingers it become strongly electrified.

When I returned to Tientsin I learned that the dust storm occurred there about the same time we experienced it 30 miles N.W., and that the electric conductor showed an extraordinary quantity of electricity—a large blue flame poured out of the end of the conductor without intermission. There being little or no light this showed a beautiful appearance, while the sound of it was quite audible at some distance off, and the shock felt on touching the conductor was powerful. The quantity of dust that entered the houses was very great.

There was a recurrence of the dust storm of the 27th, but not approaching in strength to the one on the 26th. It was also ascertained that it occurred at Peking, and at Taku, where the fury of the storm was greatest several country boats were wrecked in the river Peiho. Forty-five bodies of dead Chinamen were found after the subsidsum of the storm. Whether these people were killed in one place by lighting or lost their way in the storm and perished by cold or met with some accident on account of it has not been ascertained.

The observations made at Tientsin with meteorological instruments during this dust storm by Dr. Moffat are as follows:—

March 26th.—Warm weather to about 1 P.M., then it began to get cold at 2.30. Suddenly a cloud of dust swept over the sky obscuring the light so that candles had to be lighted. Electrometer showed negative electricity. A blue flame could be seen passing from the wire of the electrometer, and also at the point where the pith ball touched the pile. Where the conducting wire was removed from the electrometer a blue flame or spark was seen on the end of the wire.

27th.—The temperature fell 47 degrees since 1 o'clock yesterday. Electrometer shows positive electricity; not so forcible as yesterday. Dust still continues.

The observations of the thermometer, &c. at Tientsin are as follows:—

The high temperature before the storm set in is accounted for by the hot wind which was blowing up to that hour, the wind being in the S.W. point. It will also be observed that there was a considerable fall in the barometer on the 26th. No observations were made at 9 P.M. as it was impossible for an observer to make his way to the observatory, which was situated at some little distance. People were obliged to move about like so many blind men, the darkness was so great when night set in. The dust had the appurence of fine sand and collected in the corners of the yards and other sheltered places in considerable quantities, drifting as it were like snow. It is the sharp angular particles of dust almost approaching in character to fine sand which does so much injury to the eyes of the people, and gives rise to so much ophthalmic disease.

The highly electric condition of the atmosphere would have (especially in this instance) proved very injurious to an electric telegraph, if constructed above ground, to judge by the quantity of it collected from one point by a conductor about 14 feet high. The collection of electricity from a wire extending 30 or 100 miles during a similar storm would exceed the powers of the strongest battery and been equal to fusing the most obstinate metals. It must be borne in mind that this electricity was not simply a discharge from a thunder cloud, and of a transitory nature like lightening; on the contrary, it was a continuous flow of several hours' duration, and would have resembled more the electricity generated by a galvanic battery in its fusing and decomposing powers. It is to be regretted that no observations of its effects on the magnetic needle were made, as it is not improbable that there was considerable deflection produced.

Repeated observations have enabled me to come to the conclusion that these dust-storms are owing to the electric condition of the atmosphere. My attention was first drawn to the investigation which led to this discovery, by observing that the atmosphere would be repeatedly filled with dust as if a dusty room or yard was being swept at the time, although the air would be quite still. I also noticed at other times, although there was a high wind blowing, there would be no dust in the atmosphere, and at another time the wind would be strong and the air would be charged with dust. It was further ascertained that these dust-storms were partial and limited in their extent, and it was not unusual for travellers to pass through one or be overtaken by one on their journey, while their existence might be seen in distant places, by the peculiar yellow murky colour of the dust-cloud. It was also observed that the dust would subside as mysteriously as it arose, and that at times it was so dense as to require candles to be lighted at mid-day. From a close observation of the electrical apparatus, viz., a conductor of 14 feet in length, made by extending a gutta-percha-covered telegraph wire along a pole, and exposing the upper extremity of the wire to which smaller pieces of copper wire, having several sharp notches, were attached, the lower extremity of the wire being connected with a Zamboni's dry-pile electrometer. I soon ascertained that there was always an electrical disturbance going on at the time of this appearance of dust, however slight in the atmosphere, and that the density of the dust was a measure of the quantity of electricity or length of the spark obtainable from the conductor, on some occasions amounting to half an inch. It was further ascertained that the dust was merely the particles repelled from the surface of the earth by the electric state of the air, as shown by turning the lower end of the conductor towards the ground and pointing it over a collection of dust, the effect was to blow it away as it were. The following is a record of the dates on which these dust-storms occurred during the year 1861 and 1862, so far as yet observed.

By the foregoing tables it may be seen that the months of February, March, April, and May are the chief dust-storm months. After July none were noticed till January, 1862.

During the prevalence of dust-storms it was generally noticed that the atmosphere was negatively electric, and that the earth was in an opposite state. However, the observations show some variations in this respect. It was also noticed that the wind was in no particular point at the time the dust-storm prevailed; on the contrary it was observed that the wind would veer round to different points, and be otherwise unsteady. The occurrence of these dust-storms, however disagreeable for the time being, are but slight interruptions to the otherwise continuous fine weather of this part of China.
